Passing the Torch Through the Arts

Dear Saranya,

As I will be undergoing major back surgery in June, this will probably be the last email you will get from us until this Fall. We have a new musical to debut then and a Father and Daughter Play.

This month Michael Monasterial is starring in an amazing play from a writer to watch out for at the Railroad Playhouse in Newburgh.

Broadway comes to Beacon was so well received they asked us to do it again....so we will be performing excerpts from our original play about the life of Bill Cosby at the Howland Cultural Center. .

We hope you can make these last two events because creating art is only a small part of the process, sharing it is the consummate JOY.

Railroad Playhouse Box Car Play Series Presents:

The First Annual Railroad Playhouse One Act Play Festival
Reviews are in!

"The works being produced in this festival will give viewers a taste of the kind of original, thought-provoking work the playhouse hopes to regularly produce." Tim Malcolm, Times Herald Record

On The Nostalgia Cure- "Schwarz tinkers with perspective, offering a pithy, clever look at how one experience can be remembered differently between different people." Newburgh Circle- Gabrielle Grilli
On Lying Naked- "Alex Goldberg questions different perceptions of truth and limitations. It's an intimate look at how a fight unfolds in one relationship. As each new truth is exposed in their disagreement, their union reveals itself to be stranger." Newburgh Circle- Gabrielle Grilli
On Good Pictures- "Good Pictures," by Ashlin Halfnight is a compelling and sometimes bleak snapshot of two cellmates struggling through a night" Newburgh Circle- Gabrielle Grilli

"The suite of plays is an excellent sampling of talent and a hopeful example of what lies ahead for the Railroad Playhouse, as they prepare their 2012-2013 season." Newburgh Circle- Gabrielle GrilliLearn
