HISTORICAL CHARACTERS FOR 2015 --- Seven characters will entertain and enlighten you. We will be introducing the following new characters: John Germond, St. James' longest serving organist (1874-1909); Emma Victoria Pitkin Marshall, the "Poetess of Hyde Park"; Ellen Roosevelt, FDR's 1st cousin and the first women's national tennis champion; and Catherine Jenkins Carl, daughter of our first sexton. This year, as part of reparations by the Episcopal Diocese of New York, we will be examining St. James' role in the institution of slavery. To this end we are bringing back the following characters with all-new scripts presented in an interactive format: Samuel Bard, founder of St. James' and slave owner; John McVickar, first rector of St. James' and owner of slaves in indentured servitude; and Richard Jenkins, St. James' first sexton (1822-1857) and former slave. Come hear all their stories!

TOUR DETAILS

The tour is an hour long, rain or shine. In the event of severe weather, a cancellation notice will be posted on the website with a make-up date.

Suitable for ages 5 and over. We offer family-friendly living history tours, with tour guides and actors dressed in period costume. These are not haunted tours and are not meant to be scary, but some people may find being in the graveyard at night a little spooky.

Please wear clothing and shoes appropriate to the weather and the terrain. October evenings can get cold, and the ground is uneven.

Flashlights are welcome. Free parking!

TICKET INFO

By Reservation Only.

Tickets are $17 Ages 13 and over; $7 Ages 5-12. Price includes all fees. All major credit cards accepted for online orders.

If you are unable to purchase your tickets using our online system, please call the parish office at 845-229-2820. A limited number of phone-in orders can be accommodated per tour, payable in advance by cash or check only.

All orders are final.

All proceeds benefit the on-going ministry and outreach of St. James' Episcopal Church.

LIMITED MOBILITY INFO

This is a walking tour with limited lighting conducted off-path through our 200-yr. old churchyard. Unfortunately, it is not appropriate for wheelchairs, strollers, or walkers.

great program
and for a good cause!

the unique sounds of folk and blues, Harp Jensen has achieved national acclaim over the past year. A Waltham-based singer/songwriter with folk and blues in his blood, he burst onto the scene after quitting his corporate job in sales and marketing to follow his passion for music and storytelling. A singer by trade, Harp learned to play the guitar from his father and has been entertaining crowds ever since he was a young boy. His first album was released last fall and can be purchased here.
